Thinking Out Loud

H. M. L.

The Old Timer undoubtedly belongs to the "horse and buggy age." He has the vices of that age and also its virtues. He remembers the horse as a friend, and the ways of a horse are inextricably bound up with the ways of humanity. The world was not in such a rush in the horse and buggy days. There was time for reflection and the digestion of facts and their relation to government, religion and private lives. He remembers somehow, that when horses began to fade in numbers that the I. W. W.s waxed strong, and after them, came the radicals and then the communists. The Old Timer thinks that the reason we now have so many communists is because horses and horse doctors have vanished from the social scene. There is a connection of course, but the Old Timer, has not yet "thought it throughh" But he will.

"I read in Mercury," said the Old Timer yesterday, "that the government is spending a good many millions annually on propaganda. The government bureaus and departments which are writing and printing tons of this medicine for the popular mind, call the stuff "educational'," but remembering what I do of the propaganda that was loosed during the World War, I'll say I know propaganda when I see it. If the Smithsonian Institute, someday substitutes a new name for the inky juice that squids eject to hide themselves in, and call it educational fluid, I'll know that Dr. Roosevelt has sent 'em a notice.

"Despite the fact that some six thousand newspapers in the United States have something in them every day about the growth of communism, and honest people everywhere are getting nervous, the most dignified legislative body in the world, the United States Senate, rarely emits a feeble peep about it. To me that is one of the most dangerous signs of the times. Who tells them to keep so quiet? And what are they afraid of?

"Of course, my feeling about communists is that they are underpriviliged, just as they claim they are where I find them. underpriviliged as a group mind you, is that they are congentitally lazy. There is a lazy streak in most of us, but most of us keep it whipped. But the communists let it get the best of them. They yammer for a division of wealth, meaning to take from him that hath and give to him that hath not. And the poor simpleton doesn't even know, that if he were to be handed a million tomorrow, he would be stony broke, and drunk into the bargain, Saturday night. The soap-box ranter is not to blame if he was born brainless. He does not know that if he went to work and put his back into it, that he could own a home, eat regularly, and raise a family. No. He wants the wealth shared now. The fellow that worked for it, saved it, accumulated it, and yes, hangs ont to it like grim death, must share it with the communists and other bums.

"And these poor sockless visionaries, when they do work, listen to the first fast talker that comes along and organizes them in this I. W. W. or that C. I. O., collects "dues" and after they are well organized, and they have made the loud holler, and everything looks rosy for plenty of pay and no work, they wake up. The smart organizer has gone off to greener pastures to collect more money, raise more hell, and leave another group flat. And the thing that marks a communist is that they never learn. The I. W. W. army were robbed by smart organizers. Among the communists today you will find white whiskered I-Wont'-Works, that were cleaned 3 years ago by other smart organizers. They never learn to beware of a fast talker. These old boys have spent enough money on organizers, spellbinders and agitators to have bought themselves a rose covered cottage in the West.

"Now these birds that wish for a big pay check and six hours of light work in the shade, are the guys that fall for the New Deal propaganda. For in the White House today is the smartest organizer of them all. A bulletin comes out of that lonesome valley in Alaska, where the New Deal settled some two hundred sturdy farmers and their families. It tells of the rich soil that costs the farmers nothing, but does not say that six inches down the soil is solid ice and only shallow rooted plants can grow in it. It tells of salubrious summer climate, but says nothing about the arctic blizzards that rage in the winter time. It tells of the wild flowers that bloom in the spring tra-la, but never a word of the big, hungry Alaska mosquitos that keep everybody so busy slappin' them that no one has any time to work or view the flowers. It tells of the long winter nights by the big glorious fire places, but never a word about vicious bedbugs that won't let 'em get a wink of sleep. Now that, of course, is not altogether the truth, but it does illustrate the word, propaganda.

"The New Deal, so far as I have observed, has never told the whole truth in any of its literature, which runs into thousands of tons, trainloads and Postoffice deficits. The New Deal advertises the glorious sunshine of the Abundant Life, but does not mention the blisters its raising on the backs of the population. I hold that a half truth is worse than a dirty lie. That is what I call propaganda. The government bureaus today are belching forth half truths, and of course some downright lies. I'm sorry to do this, mister editor, to you, but I am going to give it to you straight The army of men who are concocting, dressing up, brewing and dishing out these millions of dollars worth of half truths are men recruited from the newspaper profession, and I want to tell you, it is a yellow blot on the escutcheon of the Press".

THIS IS HISTORY TURNING POINT, SAYS SAVANT

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 19.—Is the contemporary crisis of Western society and civilization a normal crisis such as occurs frequently and regularly in the progress of nations, or is it a crisis involving all western culture and society?

One of the world's foremost living sociologists answered the question from his own philosophic standpoint before a large University of California at Los Angeles Summer Session audinece this week. He is Pitirim Alexandorovich Sorokin, Harvard University's famed sociologist, whose monumental publication "Social and Cultural Dynamics" is currently causing international speculation and interest.

"We are living at one of the greatest turning points of history, where we find one form of civilization and culture—the Sensate—which seems to be declining before other forms of culture and civilization to come. We are in a transition period. How long it will continue no one can tell," said Dr. Sorokin, who is a visiting member of the 1937 U. C. L. A. summer session faculty. "In the near future we should expect a considerable amount of conflicts such as wars, revolutions and mental and moral disturbances and disorders. This, however, does not mean, in contradistinction to Spengler and others, the end of our western culture and society. It means that after that period of Sensate culture a new period of Ideational culture will rise again with its magnificent peaks and systems of values.

Wrest Jumps Bail; Bench Warrant Issued

John Wrest convicted of dynamiting fish in the Middle Yuba river, failed for the third time to show up for sentence this morning in the justice of the peace court, Miles Coughlin presiding. The third time missing was unlucky for Wrest. Judge Coughlin declared his bail of $500 cash forfeited and fined him $100 with the alternative of 25 days in the county jail and a warrant was issued for his arrest.

Wrest was seen on Washington street this morning by one of the deputies as he drove past the sheriff's office.

In case Wrest appears with a reasonable excuse for his repeated absence, Judge Coughlin stated he would reconsider the forfeiture of bail. Game Warden Hiscox and deputies from the sheriff's office are now looking for Wrest in order to serve the bench warrant upon him.

Judge Coughlin in commenting on the case said:

"The act itself was one of the most wanton and despicable crimes which waste the fish and game resources of the state. To perpetuate the natural condition of the streams of the state there has been expended a great deal of money and labor. If a man were in need and hungry he could plead that as justification for unlawfully taking fish or game to sustain himself but even then the need should be real and actual. The mean and shameful spirit exemplified by the commission of such an act as "blasting" fish is repugnant to the sense of decency and sportsmanship which an honest and fair man should pride himself on having. An individual who would stoop to kill hundreds of fish to get a few choice ones displays a vicious and selfish nature and probably the proper remedy is not in the statute. This same spirit is exemplified by the fact that the defendants has failed to appear for judghent. The defendant evidently isn't man enough to face this court for judgment. If a bench warrant is issued in this case the court will expect the officers to use every diligence in attempting to apprehend the defendant. It is not to be presumed that judgment in this case would be satisfied by only a fine."

QUICK ACTION OF FOREST FIRE NEAR LOYALTON

The Tahoe National Forest brought under control a 60 acres fire near Smithneck Road three or four miles south of Loyalton Sunday. Ranger Pete Land of the Sierayille area was on the fire as were also Mr. Baxter, fire chief and W. P. Lee, camp boss, the latter two out of the local office. One hundred and fifty men were called on this fire, CCC boys coming from Reno and Rubicon Point camps.

The Plumas county fire which burned over fully 500 acres had 300 men on the fire lines. Plumas county, Fallon and Reno CCC0 boys were called. Three crew bosses out of the Tahoe National forest on the Plumas fire were Joe Wehl, Forest Hill district; Mr. Reike, protective assistant under Ranger Frank McCaslan, North Bloomfield district; and Nelson Stone, Truckee district. Exceptionally stronge fires made fighting harder, and at one time a gale raging at 4 miles an hour kept everyone on the jump.

The new radio equipment installed by the Tahoe National Forest service is functioning perfectly. Ten small field sets have been added and the lookouts have larger sets or T. H. types.

DIAGNOSIS OF REV. DUNCAN IS PROVED CORRECT

G. B. Ball, mill man, who has been lame for several years, called at the Rev. Ethel Duncan's office in the Blight apartments, Grass Valley, and asked what was wrong with his leg. The Rev. Duncan had never spoken with Mr. Ball before. She looked at him a second and answered:

"There is nothing wrong with your leg. But there is something wrong with you physically. Five years ago you fell through a trap door, or through a ceiling. For three days you were in bed as a result of pain, though your pelvic region and then you returned to work but you limped. Your hip is out of its socket, the socket is filled with gristle and your spine is misplaced. The thing for you to do is to see a doctor."

Mr. Ball did not believe the Rev. Duncan. He said so flatly. But he did accept her advice, visited Dr. Hirsch, and an X-ray confirmed exactly the diagnosis the minister of the gospel had given him. His hip was restored to its normal position and in a short time he expects to walk without a limp.

The Rev. Ethel Duncan will leave Grass Valley on Wednesday, August 31. She hopes there will be no last minute rush of those who wish to consult her or seek her advice. Hundreds have availed themselves of this privilege since she first began to preach a few weeks ago in Nevada City and Grass Valley, and she urges those who wish to talk with her not to postpone it.

She has been invited to return the first of November and conduct a series of revival services. She has taken the invitation under advisement and hopes to be able to accept.

In Time of War

A woman who is the patron saint of 300 American sky pilots, stunt flyers and war aces, and one of the West's most brilliant surgeons, this week is planning to forsake her California home and career for makeshift hospitals in the shell-raked front lines of China's war zones.

This story of valor and self-sacrifice is another chapter in the life history of Dr. Margaret Chung.

But like many women before her in time of war, she has wanted to place her knowledge at the disposal of the wounded and suffering combatants. Self-sacrifice and helping the needy, however, are peace time as well as war-time jobs, and she has known both kinds.

The oldest of eleven children, she was born in Santa Barbara, California, the daughter of a fruit and vegetable dealer whose top earnings never exceeded $45 a month. Determined to become a practicing physician, she worked her way through the University of Southern California Medical School then served as interne in a Los Angeles hospital.

Hewing faithfully to the course she set for herself, she worked several years in the Women's and Children's Hospital and in the psychiatric clinic of Dr. Herman Adler in Chicago. Then she set herself up in independent practice in San Francisco.

Not content with having achieved her own goal, she sent her ten younger brothers and sisters through high school. An aviation enthusiast, she has captured the affection and homage of hundreds of American flyers to whom she is "Mors."

Though she now leaves for a country she has never seen in order to give its wounded and dying defenders the benefit of years of hospital experience, she leaves behind her a vivid example of industry and courage.—Contributed.

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY

The freshmen class of the high school defeated the sophomores in the annual brawl.

The Elks, headed by Exalted Ruler, Harry L. Englebright, went to Quincy to exemplify the degree work on a class of candidates.

The Twin Sisters mine at Snow Point reported a very rich ore chute this week.

The first rain fall struck Nevada City yesterday but turned into a light sprinkle.

The South Fork mine ta Forest City also reported a new strike. Other small mines in Sierra City and Grass Valley have reported rich tsrikes.

Mr. J. A. Casson, in charge of the paving the city streets came to Nevada City yesterday to "get the work done as soon as possible."

The Camptonville high school students made their annual pilgrimage to the Pendola Cross Sunday.

JUST WONDERIN'

I wonder when vacation ends
And sober duties reappear,
To say, "come now, attend to us
For the remainder of the year,"
Have our vacations really been
All we intended them to be,
And if we gained the powers we need
From stream and hill and forest tree.

I wonder if your vacation was entirely satisfactory. Strange, but so many other people are making the same answer.

One friend of mine started off in fine fettle to spend a restful fortnight in a quiet retreat far removed from business andsocial activities of any sort. She was swooped down upon by well meaning but exasperating relatives and whisked away to visit other relatives whose widely scattered homes were reached via rough mountain roads which at times dwindled to mere plate rails and skirted abysmal chasms down which she looked and shuddered.

During these tiresome and nerve racking journeys, she shared the rumble seat of her cousin's tricky automobile with his unruly ten year old son. She was entertained at isolated farm dwellings where barn yard voices cackled, crowed, quacked, gobbled and mooed all day and dogs barked all night. She slept, or tried to sleep, in uncomfortable beds, ate uncomforting food, and listened to interminable and oft repeated tales concerning family affairs, history and scandal until her brain reeled and reason lay supine.

She returned home tired in mind and body, with nerves frazzled and temper frayed; she had indigestion, a shocking cold, poison oak on face, hands and arms and painful stone bruises upon both heels. A memorable vacation? Yes, but that's not the word she uses when describing it.

Another friend spent a large portion of his vacation tending a garden. Roses bloomed for him, seeds he planted came up, vines and little plants grew with miraculous rapidity and produced vegetables each after its own kind.

I wonder what these hours of contact with living and growing things meant to this cultured, high minded gentleman. Some time I intend to ask him.

I wonder if Messrs. Green and Lewis enjoyed their vacations. Probably one of them did; I'm not so sure about the other. for—

Little ohn Green has lost his sheep
And don't know where to find them;
They've scampered away to another fold
With the C. I. O. behind them.

Uncle Silas just returned from his vacation reports, that many absent minded hitch hikers were—picked up.

—A. MERRIAM CONNER.

JUNIOR COLLEGE COACH PREPARES FOR GRID TEAM

Howard Woodside, coach of Placer Junior College football and baseball teams for the coming year, returned to the campus Monday to begin preparations for the 1937 season, during which Placer will enter a team in the Northern California Junior College conference.

Woodside took some advanced coaching at Utah State College in Logan, Utah, early in the summer, and later spent a month in Siskiyou county, where he fished for a vacation.

Coach Woodside states he has some fine material lined up for Placer Junior College, and is very anxious to begin practice. Physical examinations for prospective gridders are scheduled for August 30 and 31 and actual practice is set for September 1.

Woodside plans to carry a squad of 25 players throughout the season. He has ordered new equipment, that will make his squad up to date in every respect.

Personal

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Bosworth and son Donald, and Mr. and Mrs. Glen Cleland and daughter, Naomi, had a most enjoyable 300 mile drive Sunday over the new $8,000,000 Feather river highway which has been open about two weeks. They went to Hohart Mills and over ti Quincy thence down the new highway to Oroville, Marysville and some tunnels on the route were out of solid stone, many steel bridges crossed and recrossed the river while high peaks and deep canyons were impressive and gave some idea of the immense project.
